The tool is a real plan, not just an exercise. Planning will start by having the team clearly state the problem to be addressed, and determine the desired outcome by defining what success looks like and the "why" it matters to do deflection. The plan will then guide the team through steps including identifying system partners, action steps, and how the initiative will be evaluated and sustained. Each site will have one-on-one guided facilitation and access to subject matter experts (SME) who will help them through the process as they follow the tool and develop their deflection solutions action plan (SAP) On Friday morning, teams will report out about the deflection initiative they developed, how it will address the needs of their community, and how they will achieve the goals they set for their program. Speaker: Jac Charlier, Executive Director, TASCs Center for Health and Justice, Chicago, IL & the Police, Treatment and Community Collaborative (PTACC)

These challenges often fall in the hands of various systems and infrastructures to develop and implement policies and procedures that are conducive to the needs of the community. This can fuel unintentional opposition as law enforcement, first responders, and community service providers search for common ground, specifically as it relates to implementing deflection programs that also include harm reduction. As harm reduction initiatives continue to grow throughout the nation, police, treatment, and community are on the frontlines and are seeking guidance in incorporating harm reduction as a solutions-focused approach to saving lives. Therefore, this session will offer strategies through a moderated discussion Speakers: Brandee Izquierdo, Executive Director, SAFE Project, Arlington, VA Daniel P. Meloy, Chief of Police and Director of Public Safety, (Ret.) O2SL/QRT National, Director of Operations, Cincinnati, OH

Get Certified in Deflection Today! Take the First Federal Deflection eCourse

During this time, we invite PTACC summit participants not involved in Solutions Action Planning to take this seminal federal deflection eCourse from JCOIN. It presents deflection as a collaborative, problem-solving approach for police and other first responders, substance use treatment providers, and community partners.

Moving at your own pace, this course provides: information on the background and purpose of deflection; descriptions of five pathways of deflection that local communities are using to connect people to services; examples of how these deflection pathways are being implemented in a variety of community settings; resources for local leaders to begin, augment, or support deflection initiatives in their communities; and guidance for incorporating evaluation into deflection initiatives.

You will need to create a quick and free JCOIN (NIDA) login; then you'll be underway in earning your deflection certificate. Click the link below to get started and if you do not finish it all at once, you can save your place and come back later. [Note: Wi-Fi reception is best on the 1st floor in either Magik Street or the Reverie Gallery.]
